You can set which word to be search and also excluded from the download, as well as the search range. The result table lists all matches and stores them in an internal database. The matches are listed in reverse chronological order, so that the most recent match is at the top. Also, the matches are categorized by the search criteria, such as domain, page and word, and can also be sorted by any of these criteria. It also supports scraping in text format. Your scraper will store the links in a text file, that you can use later to download the links. Different approaches to downloading links ScrapeBox also has a few different modes that you can use to scrape the web. The multi-threaded approach and the recursive approach download the content from different pages, which makes the process faster. The download mode downloads the whole pages of the source, which is often limited by the software.

Different word filtering You can use pre-defined words, or set a range for keywords. You can also avoid certain words from being downloaded and recorded. ScrapeBox records the links according to the text found, so that it might consider a double-space as one word. Easy to use ScrapeBox has an intuitive interface and you don't need to be an expert to get started. You can create filters and assign a search range and a download location. When the scraper is finished, you can read the description and the download location of the results. The results are saved into a CSV file, that you can later use to download the links in your browser. You can open it with Excel and download the links that you need. The links are stored in the same order as that of the result table.

Different output formats You can export the results to a SQL table, HTML, Excel or a text file. XWriter is a software that will create a PDF 09e8f5149f
