Q: Would you need to reset the primary key of a table when importing a backup SQL file into a new database? I have a table which has two columns (name, size) I used to import the backup for the table as a backup file from one database to another My question is: If I import that backup file into a new database and want to re-set the primary key, would I need to do an ALTER TABLE statement to re-set the primary key? Or would I need to run an ALTER TABLE statement on both the new and old database to change the primary key? A: You can just run the ALTER TABLE statement and add a new primary key. The actual values will be set in the new database, but that's it
